One of the most important aspects of the energy planning process undertaken by the Governor's Office of Energy & Community Services (ECS) has been the opportunity for dialogue about our state's energy future. To help facilitate discussions and involve policymakers in the planning effort, ECS formed an Executive Committee to oversee the planning process. Members of the public and interested stakeholders participated in discussions in the eight public hearings held throughout the state, and in stakeholder groups on the topic areas covered in the plan.

As a result, we believe that this energy plan is a more comprehensive document, and a more useful tool for both policymakers and the public. We would also like to thank those who participated in the process, and recognize the significant contributions of the many stakeholders who attended meetings and provided helpful comments and suggestions for the development of the New Hampshire Energy Plan.

We would like to thank the members of the Executive Committee for their active participation and helpful guidance during the planning process. The Executive Committee included the following members:

Susan Arnold, Governor's Policy Director

Stuart Arnett, Director of the Division Economic Development, on behalf of Commissioner George Bald, Department of Resources & Economic Development

Sen. Clifton Below, D-District 5
